On The Triumphal Entry

“When Jesus taught the deep things of the Spirit, He often spoke to none but his Apostles. When He delivered His parables, He often addressed none but a multitude of poor and ignorant Galileans. When He worked his miracles, He was generally at Capernaum. But when the time came that He should die, he made a public entry in Jerusalem. He drew the attention of rulers, and priests, and elders, and scribes, and Greeks, and Romans to Himself. He knew that the most wonderful event that ever happened in this world was about to take place. The eternal Son of God was about to suffer in the stead of sinful men- the great sacrifice for sin about to be offered up. He therefore ordered it so that his death was eminently a public death.”
